TTI Personal Talent Skills Inventory[®]

Leadership/Management Version

*"He who knows others is learned.
He who knows himself is wise."

INTRODUCTION

Research suggests that the most effective people are those who understand themselves, both their strengths and weaknesses, so they can develop strategies to meet the demands of their environment.

An individual's talents and personal skills are a fundamental and integral part of who they are.

In this report we are measuring three dimensions of thought. They are:

- * Intrinsic - People
- * Extrinsic - Tasks or things
- * Systemic - Systems

This report analyzes talents; that is, a person's ability to do things. Is the report 100% true? Yes, no and maybe. As you review your report, please determine which items are job related. This will give you insight as to where to begin development.

WORLD VIEW

This is how Mark sees the world around him. This view measures his clarity and understanding of people, tasks and systems. It could also be looked at in terms of feeling, doing and thinking from an external standpoint. The statements below are based primarily on the 3 dimensions on the left side of the dimensional balance page and are in a random order.

- Mark could benefit from paying more attention to practical matters.
- He puts less emphasis on the practical perspective.
- He needs to associate with people who can take care of the details and the process of implementing the plan or idea.
- He would benefit from gaining a clearer understanding of the activities he is involved with.
- Mark performs best in positions with hands-on management.
- He could benefit from further developing his people skills, together with planning or systems skills.
- He could benefit from making a conscious effort to develop a stronger focus on practical tasks and activities.
- He needs an environment in which contributions are recognized, properly rewarded, and appreciated.
- Mark works best in an atmosphere that has a clear structure and a well-defined chain of command.

SELF VIEW

This is how Mark sees himself. This view measures his clarity and understanding of himself, his roles in life and his direction for the future. The internal dimensions are a reflection of him from both personal and professional viewpoints. The statements below are based primarily on the 3 dimensions on the right side of the dimensional balance page and are in a random order.

- Mark knows who he is, what he should be doing and where he is headed in the future.
- He tends to be adaptable, depending on what is called for in the current situation.
- He has already achieved a high level of self understanding.
- He uses his internal awareness to achieve the desired outcome during the process of a role change.
- Mark has a clear image of himself, his roles and his future.
- He believes that his own worth is based equally on his sense of self, producing and achieving in various roles, and his accomplishments.
- He could benefit from continuously challenging his abilities.
- He applies his life planning skills to personal growth.
- Mark sees what perspective he needs to focus on, depending on the current situation.
